A Sterling Old Story.

Who shall judge man from his manner?
  Who shall know him by his dress?
Paupers may be fit for princes,
  Princes fit for something less.
Crumpled shirt and dirty jacket
  May beclothe the golden ore;
Of the deepest thoughts and feelings—
  Satin vest can do no more.

There are streams of crystal nectar
  Ever flowing out of stone;
There are purple beds and golden,
  Hidden, crushed and overthrown,
God, who counts by souls, not by dresses,
  Loves and prospers you and me,
While he values thrones the highest
  But as pebbles in the sea.

Man upraised above his fellows,
  Oft forgets his fellows then;
Masters—rulers—lords, remember
  That your meanest hinds are men;
Men of labor, men of feeling,
  Men of thoughts, and men of fame,
Claiming equal rights to sunshine
  In a Man's ennobling name.

There are foam-embroidered oceans,
  There are little wood-clad rills;
There are feeble inch-high saplings,
  There are cedars on the hills.
God, who counts by souls, not stations,
  Loves and prospers you and me;
For to Him all vain distinctions
  Are as pebbles in the sea.

Toiling hands alone are builders
  Of a nation's wealth and fame;
Titled laziness is pensioned,
  Fed and fattened on the same:
By the sweat of other's foreheads,
  Living only to rejoice,
While the poor man's outraged freedom
  Vainly lifts its feeble voice.

Truth and justice are eternal,
  Born with loveliness and light;
Secret wrongs shall never prosper
  While there is a sunny right.
God, whose world wide voice is singing
  Boundless love to you and me,
Links oppression with its titles,
  But as pebbles in the sea.

A BITTER TRIAL;

-OR-

A HUSBAND'S TEMPTATION.

CHAPTER I.

We came down earlier than usual to the "shore" that season, and took rooms at a cottage not liking the bustle of a large hotel. We were to occupy the cottage jointly with another family, consisting of a gentleman, his wife and little daughter, about six years old. Our landlady was a pleasant Quaker, of middle age and all the appointments of her house were neat and comfortable. We were the first on the ground, and would have the nice little home all to ourselves for two weeks, when our fellow-boarders would arrive.

"I hope they are pleasant people," said my wife, as we sat at the tea-table on the evening before the day on which Mrs. Rawlings expected them. "You said their name was Clare?" turning to our landlady.

"Yes."

"Who are they?"

"People of standing, I believe," was the quiet answer.

"Were they ever here before?"

Mrs. Rawlings said—"No."

"I feel a little nervous about our fellow-boarders," said my wife when we were alone. "If they shall prove agreeable, we shall have a very cosy time; but if disagreeable, only annoyance. Two families thrown together as closely as our will be, need, for comfort to themselves, affinity of taste and temperament."

"We shall have to make the best of what comes," I answered. "No doubt they will prove agreeable enough."

We were on the porch next day, waiting for the new arrival, when the omnibus from the depot drove up.

Mr. Clare was a man of about thirty-five. He had one of those fine, but marked faces, which once seen you would never forget. It was frank, but strong in feature—with a sweet mouth—firmly set for all its sweetness. His eyes were large and gentle, and just a little sad, I thought, as I looked into them for the first time.

As he lifted his wife from the omnibus—she was small and light—with almost lover-like gentleness, I felt my heart going out towards the man, and drew a deep breath of relief.

"The right kind of people," said I, as they passed into the cottage, and left me alone with my wife on the porch. "Did you get a good look at Mrs. Clare? I did not."

"Yes."

"Well, what did the look tell you?"

"She's lovely."

"And Mr Clare—what do you think of him?"

"He's a splendid looking man," answered my wife, with an emphasis on one word in the sentence that left an impression of a doubt in her mind.

"Did you notice his mouth?"

"Yes."

"It was strong, yet sweet, like a woman's."

A slight veil of thought drooped down over my wife's face. She did not answer for some moments; then said, in a kind of absent way, as if she were turning over some doubt in her mind—"yes; the mouth was gentle and firm—but has lines of suffering."

"You think so."

"They were very plain to my eyes."

And now, looking through my wife's eyes, they were plain to me."

We met Mr. and Mrs. Clare at the dinner table, and found them all we could desire—quiet, refined, and just social enough to make intercourse pleasant. The lady was charming, although you could call her beautiful. She was petite in figure, with a short oval face, and brown eyes that were lustrous, yet tender! I noticed, as she sat beside her husband at the table, that she leaned a little toward him. Afterwards, I observed the same attitude, always when they were together, sitting or standing. And she had a way of looking into his face that was peculiar—a sober, loving kind of a way—questioning, and I sometimes thought touched with a doubt, or shadowed by some ever-present memory.

Mr. Clare was very gentle towards his wife, and, it was plain to see, very fond of her. Nay, "fond" is too weak a word.—He loved her with pure and deep affection.

I had claret on the table, and offered my bottle to our new guests. But they declined, with what seemed to me almost cold politeness.

"It is cooling to the blood," I remarked, as I lifted a glass of the richly-colored wine to my lips.

"It may cool the blood in some veins, but it burns like fire in others," replied Mr. Clare, after a moment or two of silence.

I said nothing in answer to this, and the subject was dropped. I found Mr. Clare a man of large culture, simple habits, and fine conversational powers. We were much together, and mutually enjoyed each other's society.

CHAPTER II.

A week went pleasantly enough. Bathing, walking and driving on the beach, sitting in the fresh sea breeze and watching the surf as it came seething in upon the shore, or gazing out upon the great immeasurable ocean—so the time passed almost like a dream.

Every day I took my claret, but Mr. Clare drank only water.

"I wish you would try a glass of this wine," said I, as we sat at the dinner-table one day, about a week after the arrival of our new friends, and I pushed the bottle toward him.

"Thank you," Mr. Clare answered gravely and decidedly. "But I am better without wine."

"Are you quite sure of that?" I queried. "Pure wine gives life to the blood. It is the spurious stuff that sets the veins on fire."

I noticed that Mrs. Clare leaned just a little closer to her husband and looked sideways into his face, in that peculiar way I have mentioned.

A faint but quickly fading smile rested on Mr. Clare's lips as he replied, "There may be idiosyncracies of blood that will not bear even pure wine. I have heard of such."

"Yes," he answered, after a moment's thought; then added—"About a year ago I saw a curious statement that impressed me strongly. It was made by a physician of some note, and recorded in a medical journal. It was to the effect, ascertained by dissections, that a too free use of stimulating drink tended to enlarge the blood globules, as well as those of the brain and other organs, so that they stood open-mouthed, as it were, inflamed, athirst always and eager to drink. The physician to whom I have referred, after clearly ascertaining the existence of this morbid change, had an opportunity to dissect the brain of a man who, after being a drunkard for many years, reformed and lived soberly until he died. To his astonishment, he found that the unnaturally enlarged globules of the blood and brain had not shrunk to their proper size. Though they did not exhibit the inflammation of the drunkard's brain, they were enlarged, and ready, it seems, on the instant to absorb the fumes of alcohol, and resume their old diseased condition."

A low, half stifled sigh touched my ears. I glanced into the face of Mrs. Clare, and saw that her eyes had the set look of one who is gazing intently on some mental picture on which her soft eyes were fixed; I needed no words to tell me that.

"Curious," I remarked, as Mr. Clare ceased speaking.

"I was struck," he resumed, after a pause, "with the impression made by this discovery on the physician's mind. He thought he saw in this morbid state of the brain the physical part of the reason why a man who has once been a drunkard can never again, as long as he lives, safely take one drop of alcoholic liquor. He thought he saw why a glass of wine put the man back instantly to where he was when he drank all the time. He saw the citadel free from the enemy, but undefended, incapable of defence, and its doors wide open, so that there was no safety, except in keeping the foe at a distance, away beyond the outermost wall."

I thought I detected a slight shiver in Clare's voice, as with some warmth of manner he closed the last sentence.

"I never understood the pathology of this thing before," said I—"the physical reason why there was no safety for the drunkard only in total abstinence We have the secret here. But I cannot understand why pure wine should inflame the blood when every globule is in its normal state."

"There are such things as hereditary conditions," remarked Mr. Clare. "Is not a drunkard as likely to transmit the enlarged and thirsty blood and globules to his children, as a consumptive his tubercular diathesis?"

I was half startled by the conclusive directness of the query.

"The law of transmission," he went on, "acts in no partial way. Whatever we do of habit, whether physical or mental, goes down potentially to our children. It is an estate of which no one can rob them. We bless or curse them in our daily lives."

There was a shiver in his voice now.—My ear felt it almost painfully.

"Were you always so abstemious?" I asked two or three days afterwards, as my glass of claret brought back the wine question.

"No," he answered, somewhat gravely.

"In my younger days I drank occasionally. But wine always was too heating for my blood."

"Perhaps," said I, "the article was not always pure. It has long been difficult to get the genuine stuff."

"It was pure in my father's house," he replied.

"Then you are familiar with the best brands," I remarked.

"Entirely."

"And know the flavor of good wine."

"Few men know it better," he replied quietly.

I lifted the half emptied glass of claret that stood near my plate, held it to the light, and then sipped a few drops, saying as I did so, "I think this is all right, it should be, for it came directly from the importer's, and I paid him his own price under the guarantee of genuineness. I am afraid of all doctored stuff. Do me the favor," and I poured a claret glass half full, "just to let a few drops fall on your tongue, and give me your opinion of its quality."

How would he refuse so slight a request? For an instant there was hesitation. I looked at him and saw a quick change in his face. His wife leaned closer and laid her hand very softly on his arm. Then he took the glass I held toward him, raised it to his mouth, and sipped a few drops of the fruity wine. My eyes were on his face, watching for the connoisseur's look of pleasure. The expression I saw was more than that. It had in it a quick thrill. Removing the glass from his lips, he held it poised for a moment, then lifting it again, he drained the contents at a single draught.

I will never forget the sudden pallor and look of despair that struck into Mrs. Clare's face.

"Pure wine, without question," said Clare, in a low, changed voice, as he kept tasting the flavor on his tongue. "Pure wine, sir! You are fortunate in getting so good an article."

I noticed that he turned himself a little away from his wife, still holding the glass in his hand, and reaching it, I thought, a little forward, as if inviting me to fill it.

"Thank you! I am glad to know it," I returned, my voice betraying the change in my feelings.

Mr. Clare set the glass down quickly, and went on with his dinner, bending low to his plate. The meal was finished in silence and embarrassment. I ventured to look once or twice at Mrs. Clare, who was only pretending to eat. Her face was pale and anxious. The change in her husband's countenance was as marked as the change in hers. All the old sweetness had faded from his lips, that now touched each other in a harder pressure; and the gentleness had gone out of his eyes.

He arose without speaking, and left the table, Mrs. Clare following. Our chamber adjoined theirs, and thither, after leaving the dinning-room, I went with my wife.

"Did you see Mrs. Clare's face when her husband drank that glass of wine?" she asked, looking at me very soberly.

"Yes, and I would give this moment half I am worth to recall the thoughtless act. But it never, for an instant, crossed my mind that he was in danger."

At this moment we heard through the partitions that separated our chambers, the voice of Mr. Clare pitched to an unusual tone.

"Come, lie down and get your usual nap," we heard Mrs. Clare say coaxingly.

"I am going to walk on the beach, I tell you!" was roughly answered. "I can't sleep."

"Then I'll walk with you," was the firm, but kind reply.

"Not if I wish to go alone, madam! And I do!"

We heard no more. Everything was silent in the room for some minutes. Then the door opened, and the sound of heavy feet was on the stairs. A low cry, like a despairing wail, thrilled upon the air. Afterwards all was as silent as death in the adjoining chamber.

"You had better go after him," said my wife, turning on me a pale face.

"It will be of little use, I fear," was my reply, though, acting on her suggestion, I went out quickly.

I looked up and down the street, as I stepped from the cottage, but Clare was not in sight. At the next corner, going towards the sea, was a drinking saloon. I went in, but did not find him. Then I hurried down to the beach, thinking he might have gone to walk there as he had said. To my great relief, I saw him sitting alone in one of the rude arbors covered with dead leaves, that were scattered along the shore.

"Ah! Good afternoon!" I spoke familiarly. "Enjoying this delicious breeze?"

He looked up at me with a countenance so altered, that I scarcely recognized a feature; stared scowlingly for a while; then, with a fierce impulse in his voice, flung out the imprecation—

"Curse you!"

I staggered as though he had struck me. I was not surprised alone—I was appalled.

"If you had put a pistol to my head, you could not have done me worse service!" He added in a voice that was passionate with despair.

I sat down beside him and took his hand, but he flung mine away, glaring at me with hate and loathing.

"Just leave me!" he cried. You've done your cursed work. Leave me!"

All my efforts were in vain—and Heaven knows I tried faithfully to soothe him, and so get down into his confidence that I could help him in his fierce struggle with an awakened appetite.

Finding that I would not leave him, he arose and strode rapidly up the beach. I followed near enough to keep him in sight; but he turned into one of the streets that came down to the beach, and I lost track of him.

Nearly an hour afterwards, I found him at the bar of the hotel with a glass in his hand, drinking. I went up to him, and was about to speak, when he bent towards me with so evil a light in his eyes, that I felt for the instant afraid. Lifting a warning finger, he said, in a low, passionate voice: "Keep on your own side, sir! I owe no good will—and I'm dangerous!" He stood, bending forward, gazing steadily at me, without changing a muscle of his face, or varying its expression in the smallest degree.

I turned slowly and went away, my heart like lead in my bosom.

CHAPTER III.

Mr. Clare was absent at tea-time, and his wife did not come down from her room. I sat out upon the porch until nearly ten o'clock waiting for his return.

"Isn't that him?" asked my wife, who, troubled as I was, sat on the porch with me

A man, walking unevenly, came into the light of the nearest lamp, took hold of the post and studied himself for a moment, and then moved on toward the cottage. Yes, it was Clare. He came forward, planting his steps carefully, stumbled a little as he ascended the porch, but recovered himself, and, without speaking, came in and went up to his chamber, making but little noise on the way.

We soon followed, anxious and heavy-hearted, and sat down in our room with no thought of retiring. The sounds that came from the next room were not intelligible nor satisfactory. Some one was moving about uneasily, and either putting things right or changing the old order. This went on steadily for perhaps a quarter of an hour, without a voice being heard. Then we were startled by a low, quick cry of fear, and knew the voice to be that of Mrs. Clare. A dead silence followed. We listened in painful suspense.

"I have a mind to do it," we heard Mr. Clare say, and following the sentence came the clear click of the pistol lock.

The next few minutes seemed an age, as we waited for the deadly report, afraid to stir or call, lest our interference should work the fatal catastrophe we sought to avert.

"Shoot if you will!" It was the clear, steady voice of Mrs. Clare. "I am ready."

All was hushed as death again, and we sat, scarcely breathing, in an agony of dread. What would I not have given to know just how it was in that chamber, so that I might determine whether it were safe to interfere. But the impenetrable walls hid everything, and left us in doubt and irresolution.

Silence! silence for nearly a quarter of an hour. Then old sounds began again, and the uneasy movements and disturbance went on.

"I'll throw you from the window if you do that again!" There was something savage in the voice of Clare as he said this, in a loud unguarded voice.

Then we heard a struggle. I could bear it no longer, but ran out into the hall, and tried to enter their room; but the door was fastened. I rattled the lock, and struck the door loudly two or three times.

"What's wanted?" was growled from within. I would never have recognized the voice as that of Mr. Clare.

"Open the door," I said.

A hand was laid upon the lock inside, and the key began turning in the wards.

"Don't, for Heaven's sake!" I heard, in a low cry of terror, from Mrs. Clare.

This was answered by a wicked imprecation, followed by a struggle, a heavy fall upon the floor, and a silence deep as death.

I threw myself against the door, but the lock and hinges were strong, and did not yield. I was about repeating the effort, when I found myself standing face to face with Clare, his eyes wild and fierce, like the eyes of a mad man, and his countenance fearfully distorted. He held a pistol in his hand, pointing it directly at my head. He did not speak, but looked the personification of murder. I was paralyzed by this apparition, and we stood like two statues, for I cannot say how long—a second or a minute—when Clare seemed to vanish like a spectre, and the shut door was again between us.

I went back into my room and sat down, weak and trembling, great beads of sweat rolling from my forehead.

"Hark!" said my wife, and we both listened anxiously. The noise that came from our neighbor's room was like that of a body dragged across the floor, and then lifted upon the bed. It was the last sound that reached our ears. For over an hour we sat listening with strained senses. Not the slightest movement was apparent.

"They are asleep," said my wife, in a husk whisper. It was after midnight.

"The sleep to one of them may have no waking in this world," was my troubled answer.

My wife shuddered.

"Cost what it will, I must have the secret of that room!" I exclaimed, starting up under the sudden spur of keen self-accusation. "I am a dastard to sit here and leave a poor weak woman to the mercy of a drunken maniac!"

I would hear to no remonstrance on the part of my wife, but went out quickly. How was I to enter the room? I stood close to the door, canvassing in thought the ways and means of passing the barrier that intervened, when to my surprise I saw that it was slightly ajar, not having been fastened by Clare when he shut it in my face. Softly I pushed it open, stepping noiselessly into the room. A lamp still burned on the mantle. The sight that met my eyes, so unlooked for and so touching, I shall never forget.

Mrs. Clare was lying on the bed, her face turned towards the light. She was very pale, her countenance having the marble fixedness of death. But I saw that she was sleeping. Oh! the sadness, the grief, the helpless anguish that rested on her lips, and moulded the lines about her mouth! I felt the tears creeping into my eyes.

Sitting in a chair beside the bed, was Mr. Clare, also asleep. One arm was drawn under and around the neck of his wife, and her white cheek pressed closely to his face, that was so much shadowed that I could not get its full expression.

I stood only a moment—just long enough to comprehend the scene—then noiselessly shut the door.

On the next morning, Mr. and Mrs. Clare met us at the breakfast-table. Her face was so changed, I would scarcely have recognized it. I noticed that she leaned towards her husband as she sat beside him at the table, in the old way, and closer than before. His face was that of a man who had suffered a terrible humiliation. He neither looked at nor spoke to any one. But I noticed, as he drank his coffee, and eat, or pretended to eat, a piece of toast, that his bearing was firm, like that of a man self-possessed and in earnest.

Once only since then have I crossed their path, though the thought of them long remained a heavy burden on my heart. It was a year afterwards. I met them in the Park, walking together, she leaning on his arm, the sweetness and love I had once seen, again resting on her countenance, and the manly strength and gentleness of his face as marked as when I first saw him at the sea-shore.

They did not observe me, and I passed on, glad to be unobserved, and with a lighter heart, as I said fervently:—"Thank God."

THE FEMALE TEMPER.—No trait of character is more valuable in a female than the possession of a sweet temper. Home can never be made happy without it. It is like the flowers that spring up in our pathway reviving and cheering us. Let a man go home at night, wearied and worn out by the toils of the day, and how soothingly is a word dictated by a good disposition! It is sunshine falling upon the heart He is happy and the cares of life are forgotten. A sweet temper has a soothing influence over the minds of the whole family.—Where it is found in the wife and mother, you observe kindness and love predominating over the natural feeling of a bad heart. Smiles, kind words and looks characterize the children, and peace and love have their dwelling there. Study, then, to acquire and retain a sweet temper. It is more valuable than gold, and captivates more than beauty, and to the close of life retains all its powers.

"A MAN in a Pennsylvania lunatic asylum," says an exchange, "imagines himself a woman, and for that reason parts his hair in the middle." Several Huntingdon young men, outside of the lunatic asylum, part their hair in the middle, because, as it is supposed, they have a reason.

"THERE," said a little girl, while rummaging a bureau, "there now, grandpa has gone to heaven and left his spectacles."

TEMPTATIONS are a file which rub off much of the trust of our self-confidence.

A Discouraged Boy.

This boy was a good boy. He would have been an angel to-day but for the deceit of this false hearted world. He wasn't one of a set of triplets, and therefore didn't have honors showered down upon him in his early days, but old women said there was foundation there for an orator, a great general or a philosopher, and old men examined his head and said it was level. Nothing particular happened to Christopher Columbus until the eighth year of his reign. His childhood days were full of mud pies, the butt end of shingles, paregoric, castor oil, and old straw hats with the front brim torn off. He was a deep thinker and a close observer for a small boy, and he was just innocent enough to believe things which other boys pitched out the window without a second thought.

When Christopher was going on nine years old he heard some one say that "a penny saved was twopence earned.' He therefore laid a big Bungtown away in a crack under the mop board, and every day he looked to see it grow to two cents. He had confidence and patience, but at length both gave way. Then he got the cent out one day, and Mrs. Norton's baby swallowed it, and that was the last of that Bungtown The youthful Christopher didn't believe in maxims quite as much as before, he hadn't cut his eye-teeth yet.

When this boy was a year older he heard it said that "truth was mighty and must prevail," and that a boy who always spoke the truth would make a great and good man. He commenced to tell the truth. One day he got his father's best razor out and hacked it on a stone, and when the old gent came home and asked who in the blazes had done that, Christopher Columbus spoke up and said:

"It was I, father—I notched your razor."

"You did, eh?" sneered the old man as he looked up into the peach tree; "well, I'll fix you so you won't never notch another razor for me."

And he cut a budding limb and dressed that boy down until the boy saw stars. That night Christopher Columbus determined never to tell the truth again unless by accident, and all through life he stuck to that resolution.

When the lad was about twelve years old he read in a little book that "honesty was the best policy." He didn't more than half believe it, but thought he'd try. He went to being honest. One day his mother sent him to the grocery to buy eggs, but Bill Jones induced him to squander the change for soda water. When he got home his mother asked him for the little balance, and Christopher explained.

"Spent it for soda, eh?" she replied.—"Here your poor old mother is working like a slave, and you are around swilling soda-water! I don't think you'll swill any more, I don't! Come over my right knee."

And she agitated him in the liveliest manner. That night as he turned on his downy straw bed the boy made up his mind that honesty didn't pay, and he resolved to cheat the whole world if he could.

When Christopher was a half a year older he came across the injunction: "Be kind to the poor." He did not know whether it would pay or not, but he set about it. He knew a poor woman who sadly needed a spring bonnet, and he took over his mother's, along with a few other things, including his father's second pair of boots, his own Sunday shoes, and so on. He went around feeling very big-hearted until the old gent wanted to go to the lodge one night and then it came out.

"Gin away my boots, eh?" inquired the father; "lugged your mother's best bonnet off, eh? Well, I don't think you'll remember the poor very much after tonight."

And he pounded Christopher Columbus with a pump-handle until the boy fainted away, and even then he did not feel as though he had not made thorough job of it.

They fooled this boy once more. He heard a rich man say that everybody should "make hay while the sun shone." So when there came a sunny day he went out, took his father's scythe down from the plum tree and went to making hay.

He broke the scythe, cut down the turnips and hacked his sister in the heel, and his mother came out and led him around by the hair and bounced him until he almost went into a decline. They couldn't bamboozle that boy after that. He grew wicked every day of his life, and before his eighteenth birthday arrived he was hung for murder. He said he didn't care a huckleberry about it, and died without making the usual Fourth of July oration.

A Woman True.

Place her among flowers, foster her as a tender plant, and she is a thing of fancy, waywardness and folly—annoyed by a dewdrop, fretted by the touch of a butterfly's wing and ready to faint at the sound of a beetle; and she is overpowered by the perfume of a rosebud. But let a real calamity come, rouse her affections, enkindle the fires of her heart, and mark her then how her heart strengthens itself—how strong is her heart; place her in the heat of the battle—give her a child, a bird—anything to protect—and see her in a relative instance, lifting her white arms as a shield, as her own blood crimsons the upturned forehead, praying for life to protect the helpless. Transplant her in the dark places of the earth, call forth her energies to action, and her breath becomes a healing, her presence a blessing. She disputes inch by inch the stride of stalking pestilence, when man, the strong and brave, pale and affrighted, shrinks away. Misfortune haunts her not; she wears away a life of silent endurance, and goes forward with less timidity than to her bridal. In prosperity she is a bud full of odors, waiting but for the winds of adversity to scatter them abroad pure gold, valuable but untried in the furnace. In short, woman is a miracle—a mystery, the centre from which radiates the great charm of existence.

BE content to continue poor, while others around you grow rich by fraud and disloyalty; be without place or power while others beg their way upwards; bear the pain of disappointed hopes while others gain theirs by flattery; forego the gracious pressure of the hand for which others cringe and crawl.

The ten-day assessment is abolished by the new Constitution, and all voters must now be registered SIXTY DAYS BEFORE THE ELECTION, when the registration lists will be returned to the Commissioners.—As the election is to take place on the third day of November it will be well for every voter to see that he is registered by the 1st of September. tf

☞ Wanted—A few silly Democrats to fill up the Potato Bug ticket. Fellows who can't take crow straight need not apply.

☞ The Potato Bugs have had so much of Guss' fun that it has nauseated them. A few more doses and the whole "capoodle" will fly to the mountains of Hepsidam.

☞ Guss was bound to be a candidate for Legislature, but Woods couldn't see it, and the Potato Bug Convention voted under the hat. The facile Mateer is the "victim."

☞ The "Original Republicans" (?) couldn't find timber enough to make up a full ticket. Bah! Democrats, are you going to take what they don't want? Hawk or Buzzard!

☞ The Democratic Convention assembles this (Tuesday) morning. We expect a fusian ticket to be formed with Guss' "Original Republicans." The principal leader of the Democratic party is favorable.

☞ The Potato Bug Party is rapidly reduced to what it was originally—two or three in a district. There are a large number of districts in which not a single bug-ger can be found. Last weeks' ticket settled their hash.

☞ Since the Potato Bug Convention Guss begins to think that he was slaughtered in the house of his friends. After all the "persecution" (?) he has suffered for his clique what ingratitude it was in them to give him the go-by. Poor Phule!

☞ The Supreme Court of this State has just decided that the public sale of unclaimed packages by express companies, which are unopened, is a fraud upon the rights of the owner, and that the Company is liable for the value of the goods. This is a decision of considerable public importance.

☞ The Cove Echo was sold by Sheriff Bobb, on Monday of last week, for $150, to Dr. Thompson of Williamsburgh. The Doctor wants to get rid of that Echo now. It is one to many for him, but at $400 it will be some time before he gets the elephant off his hands. Take half the amount and leave it slide.

☞ We were in error. The Globe was right for once. The owner of the canal boat dubbed "A. L. Guss" was not paid twenty-five dollars for the privilege of painting this very appropriate cognomen for a bagnio on the stern of his boat. It is true he was promised $25, but then he was never paid! We challenge a successful contradiction of this statement.

☞ Almost daily we are approached, by honest yeomen, who tell us that they were deceived and misled and that they intend to mend their ways, and vote a straight Republican ticket. We like their spirit. They confess that they were humbuged and want to do the square thing in the future, and we honor them for it. Roll in; we are willing to meet you half way.

☞ The rank and file of those who have heretofore adhered to Guss and Woods are growing tired and ashamed of the hing and are leaving daily. We hear every day of men who say they cannot be dragged into the Democratic Party. We have always believed this. These people have been deceived and they are getting light. We welcome them back. Close up the ranks!

☞ The Fulton Republican has this to say of Back-pay Speer: "Hon. R. M. Speer, M. C., of Huntingdon, was in town the other day, casting the political horoscope of this county, in order to calculate his chances for Congress. We can tell him without looking at the stars that he has about as much chance to secure the conferees from this county as the King of the Cannibal Islands."

☞ There was an altercation and some very discreditable language used at the late delegate election in the First Ward. The whole affair was unquestionably disgraceful. The Globe parades it in two mortal columns. It revels in that sort of thing. Anything that savors of the obscene is seized upon by its editor with an avidity that is truly marvelous. What a capacity for obscenity the fellow has!—Some people animate themselves by drinking ardent spirits, others by drinking milder drinks, some by chewing opium, but if you want to fire up the imagination of the editor of the Globe just mention something obscene and he effervesces worse than ginger pop or soda water.

HOW THE POTATO BUG CONVENTION WAS MADE UP.

A Nice Kettle of Fish.

If any additional evidence had been needed, to convince the Republicans of this county, of the hollowness and hypocrisy of the pretences set up to excuse the action of the bolters from the regular convention of last year, the proceedings of these bolters this year would furnish that evidence. They issued a call to Republicans to meet at the usual places of electing delegates, one hour before the time fixed by Mr. Musser, the Chairman of the regular committee. Do not the people in nearly all the townships and boroughs know that no delegates were elected by any meetings held in pursuance of their call? We have made inquiry on this subject and learn that three persons pretended to hold a delegate meeting at Shirleysburg, John Logan being one of the three; that there were seven present in Walker township, that a meeting was held in Tod and another in Cass, and one in Union, but outside of these we have not learned of any. We know that the bolters held no delegate meetings at the usual places in this borough, we are informed none were held by them in Warriorsmark, Franklin, Alexandria or Porter township, Petersburg or West township, Barree, Jackson or Oneida, or indeed in any of the other townships than those we have named above where the gatherings were farcically small.

Yet delegates self-elected came here, and claimed to be representing somebody besides themselves. If the proceedings are correctly reported in their organ we think even it will reveal that they resorted to the deception of putting in as delegates men who do not reside in the districts they undertook to represent.

And when the motley crowd did get together what did it do? Did it nominate a full ticket and ask the support of Republicans? Not a bit of it. The trick is very thin. The bargain made with the Democratic leaders sticks out at once. Of the two Assemblymen to be elected they nominate only one, and they omit altogether to nominate for the most important county office, that of Sheriff. Why did they do this when they had their bogus convention together? and why the palpable device of pretending to authorize their County Committee to fill these places on the ticket? County Committees sometimes fill vacancies that happen by resignation or refusal of candidates, but unless there is some cat hidden under the meal, party conventions don't leave vacancies for the committee to fill. There is a large Democratic cat under this pretended Republican tub of meal, and the future will soon reveal it.

The vacancies are left for the Democrats to fill, the bolters are to support one Democratic Assemblymen, the Democratic Sheriff, the Democratic Senator, and of course the old ally of the League, the Democratic Congressman who is expected to be the Hon. Robert Milton Back Pay Speer; and in return for this the Hon. R. M. B. P. Speer and the other leaders, are to transfer the whole body of the Democratic votes over nolens volens, to the support of the fractional part of a ticket put up by command of Guss and Woods.

Republicans can thus see that the bolters ask them to sit down to the nastiest dish of crow that was ever presented to be swallowed. To receive the election from among the bolters of one member of the Legislature, a County Commissioner, a Poor Director and a County Surveyor, the Republicans are asked to join in electing from the Democrats a Congressman, a State Senator, a member of the Legislature, and a Sheriff.

We content ourselves this week with setting the dish before the public, awaiting to see how the Democratic stomach will receive it in their convention, and intending to stir it up occasionally between this and the election if it is presented according to the programme of the leaders.

☞ We had the pleasure of seeing how they do things in Republican Conventions at Huntingdon, on Tuesday, and must say that matters were conducted in a manner which reflects much credit on the members of said body and the party throughout the county. George Guyer, of Warriorsmark township, and Henry Robinson, of Dublin, were nominated for Assembly; Huston E. Crum, present Deputy Sheriff of the County, received the nomination for Sheriff; W. E. Corbin, of Juniata township, was selected for Commissioner; Jacob H. Isett, of Penn, for Director of the Poor; Wm. H. Booth, of Springfield, for County Surveyor; and Henry H. Swoope, of Mapleton, for Auditor. Mr. Guyer received all the votes in the convention but one, which is certainly a strong endorsement of that gentleman, and will have its weight on election day. Mr. Robinson was elected by one of a majority over Mr. Dewees. Mr. Robinson was a delegate, voted for Dewees, and insisted on declining in Dewees' favor several times after the vote was taken, but his friends wouldn't hear to it.—Mr. Robinson is a popular, honest and intelligent gentleman. The fifth ballot nominated Crum for Sheriff. The Huntingdon Republicans are certainly improving. All was harmony on Tuesday.

In convention on Tuesday, the Woods wing of the Republican party nominated one man for Assembly, and candidates for the offices of Commissioner, Director of the Poor, and County Surveyor, leaving the other positions vacant for the Democrats to fill. Which looks bad for Republicans.—Tyrone Herald.

☞ One would hardly suppose that the "Original Republicans(?)" would tolerate a renegade Democrat in their organization. Not they. It is wicked to insinuate that the Chairman of the late Potato Bug Convention was once a Democrat. Ahem! We believe he is the Chairman of their County Committee also! They want to get as close to the Democrats as possible!

☞ Give the county offices to the Potato Bugs, and they are satisfied. If the Democrats paid no taxes they might concede these to them; but under the circumstances it is extremely doubtful.

☞ The Republican State Convention assembles at Harrisburg to-day (Tuesday). We will lay its proceedings before our readers next week.

A FABLE.

BY ÆSOP, JR.

A numerous flock of Eagles held sway over a certain portion of territory, by virtue of superior strength and numbers, but annually a large body of Hawks would dispute the government of it with them in a pitched battle. These battles were generally very fiercely contested and lasted a whole day, in which numerous Hawks were generally killed or wounded. The Eagles were invariably victorious, but their victories brought upon them an element of weakness. This was a bevy of Buzzards that followed the camp of the victors to gather up the refuse. In time these Buzzards grew strong upon what they appropriated, and began to claim all the rights and privileges of Eagles, and not only this, but they demanded the right to lead the Eagles in all their engagements and to apportion all the plunder out among themselves, and when their insolent demands were not complied with, they would steal away, under cover of darkness, and secretly ally themselves to the Hawks, so that the Eagles might be slaughtered in great numbers, to enable them to prove to the Eagles that they could not do without their aid. They were silly enough to believe that the Eagles would concede everything to them for their friendship, and if they did, they would wax rich, at least the leaders of them—little, of course, was thought of the Buzzards who made up the rank and file. They waxed poorer every day. At last the Eagles became enraged at the perfidious conduct of the Buzzards, and made war upon them, assisted by a few of the most noble of the Hawks, who despised the insolence and perfidy of the Buzzards, and several pitched battles were fought, in which the Buzzards were eventually completely routed and their weakness most effectually shown up. At a loss what to do to obtain their lost prestige, one old cock Buzzard proposed that they claim to be the original Eagles, assuring his followers that some stupid Eagles might fall in with them, and thus save them from utter confusion and annihilation, while another suggested that they enter into an open alliance with the Hawks, but the first proposition created only merriment and contempt in the camp of the Eagles, while the second was spurned by every virtuous and noble Hawk. The question of the day was, "Hawk or Buzzard? Which? or both?"

MORAL.—The insolent and vile frequently aspire to the most elevated and honorable positions, but perfidy and villainy will, sooner or later, meet its just reward. The corrupt and impure may flourish for a season, but the noble and the good, in time, will and must prevail.

☞ The Congressional contest in Bedford county, is growing very interesting to us. We are intimately acquainted with the rival candidates, and, having spent a number of the best years of our life fighting the Democracy, side by side with them, it would be strange, indeed, if we did not feel much interest in the struggle now going on. From all the information which we have been able to obtain, we are led to believe that J. B. Williams, esq., is the coming man. He is a new man of great popularity among his neighbors, and not second to his rival in energy and perseverance. It is this very newness that gives him strength, and will make him the candidate, if he is successful in carrying Bedford county. Old stagers always have enemies and jealousies to overcome. We do not thing that Mr. Cessna could be nominated under any circumstances, but if he should carry Bedford county, he certainly would prove a great annoyance to his rivals, who no doubt know his wonderful capacity for manipulating conferences. In the counties of Blair, Cambria and Somerset we do not see a single favorable indication for him, while men who are in a sense hostile to each other, in at least two of the counties, will control the conferees—either of these gentlemen, we have no doubt, would prefer voting for Mr. Williams to voting for the other—so that Mr. Williams has decidedly a better prospect of securing the nomination than either of the other candidates named. If the people of Bedford county want the member of Congress, we firmly believe they can only secure that result by giving Mr. Williams the county.

☞ R. Bruce Petriken, of Huntingdon, was in Port Royal, this county, on last Thursday, looking after the interests of Hon. R. Milton Speer for the nomination of Congress in this district. The assertion he made about Juniata county's favorite for Congress, Dr. A. J. Fisher, is a lie.—Juniata county is desirous to have the nominee, and Dr. Fisher is in earnest to make the nomination. But we can assure Governor Petriken of this fact, that had Juniata county no man to present for the position, and the contest was between Hon. John A. Magee, of Perry county, and Hon. R. M. Speer, of Huntingdon county, Mr. Speer would not get twenty-five votes in the county. The Democracy of Juniata are for honest and pure Democrats.—No Salary-Grabbers! No Inflationists! for little Juniata's Democracy, if you please, Governor.—Mifflintown Democrat.

BACKING A SALARY GRABBER.—The recent Democratic Convention of Snyder county, passed a resolution unanimously declaring in favor of Hon. R. M. Speer, back pay salary-grabber, for Congress, and authorizing him to choose his own conferees. It requires a good deal of grit to defend a salary grabber just now, but the Snyder County Democracy evidently stick to the old Democratic motto, "To the victors belong the spoils," and admire the man who boldly steals all he can lay his hands on. That may be the platform of the water-logged Democracy, but the people don't endorse it just now.—Bedford Inquirer.

☞ The "Original Republicans" (?) have given up the idea of paddling their "own canoe," and want to hand the small craft over to the Democrats, but some of the latter don't like the mixture.

☞ County offices—Commissioners and Poor Directors is the height of the Potato Bug ambition. They want a chance to bleed the tax-payers. Remember Porter township!

☞ The Democrats of Snyder county have declared for back-pay grabber Speer for Congress. He will, in all probability, carry Huntingdon county, and we understand, is promised Franklin, provided he does certain things. Magee, of the old Perry District, will strongly contest for the remaining counties, with a good show of success. There will then be a tie, with the chances in favor of Magee. Should Speer succeed in getting the nomination, a large number of the Huntingdon Democracy will utterly refuse to support or vote for him.—Tyrone Herald.

☞ We hear that the Right Reverend A. L. Guss, late Principal of the late Cassville Soldiers' Orphan School, and Professor of ——, well, no matter, lectured to an appreciative audience, in the street at Cassville, a week or two ago, on the Investigation, notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather. Ten or a dozen persons were much edified. Had it been announced sooner one or two more might have been enlightened.

☞ We have been requested, by Prof. R. S. Kuhn, of Milnwood Academy, to say to our readers that the contemplated Re-Union of the students of that institution, on the first proximo, has been indefinitely postponed, on account of the inability of Rev. Dr. Fisher to deliver the anticipated address.

☞ The Tilton-Beecher scandal appears to be the leading topic in the East. Beecher's statement is regarded differently from different standpoints. There is no getting the truth in the affair without going to the courts. It is a very dirty business.

☞ An invaluable remedy for emmigrants and persons traveling or temporarily visiting malarious districts, is to be found in SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR. If taken occasionally, it will prevent Chills, Fevers and injurious effects from change of water.

THE NEW AMERICAN SEWING MACHINES.
THE NEWEST AND THE BEST
It is a simple Machine having but few working Parts, and always ready to work.
The simple manner in which the Machine is threaded, makes it easy of accomplishment by the most inexperienced. There being NO HOLES to thread either above or in the Shuttle.
The Shuttle requires no threading, being ready to work as soon as the Bobbin is placed in it.
If the Machine accidently turns backward, it does no harm and breaks no threads or needles.
It runs lightly and easily, requiring very little outlay of strength, and sewing with great speed on any material thereby admitting of its use by many in delicate health, who have heretofore been unable to use Sewing Machines.
The tensions are easily, evenly and perfectly adjusted, the under tension being self-regulating, and no threading up required in the shuttle. The under thread is drawn from a short deep bobbin, giving a perfectly even tension, never breaking the thread, making the Lock-Stitch the strongest and best.
RUNS THE LIGHTEST OF ANY SHUTTLE MACHINE.
MAKES THE LEAST NOISE—HAS SELF-SETTING NEEDLE.
HAS THE MOST ROOM UNDER THE ARM.
NEVER SKIPS STITCHES OR BREAKS THE THREAD.
IS MOST EASILY LEARNED.
CAN BE INSTANTANEOUSLY ADJUSTED TO WORK FROM No. 300 to No. 10 COTTON.
IS THOROUGHLY MADE IN ALL ITS PARTS OF THE BEST MATERIALS, AND EVERY MACHINE IS WARRANTED BY THE COMPANY AND ITS AGENTS.
JOHN H. THOMAS,
General Agent for Huntingdon county,
Mill Creek, P. O., Pennsylvania.

3d, That Thomas Thompson, of Coalmont, is justly entitled to his seat as Delegate in this Convention.

4th. That as Oneida township is entitled to only one delegate, and as the evidence is very conflicting, and as Mr. Lytle is a candidate for nomination the committee therefore decide that under all the circumstances Wm. V. Miller, is justly entitled to his seat in this Convention.

Report adopted.

On motion of John S. Warfel, esq., the Convention proceeded to make nominations.

On motion of Capt. Brewster, the Convention proceeded to nominate in the order stated in the call for the Convention.

Ewing, of Franklin, Perry Moore, of Morris, and Samuel Bollinger, of Cromwell, were each placed in nomination. The ballots resulted: Corbin, 40; Ewing, 7; Moore, 14; Bollinger, 12. The amendment prevailed, and the resolution, as amended, was adopted.

On motion, Levi Clabaugh, of Warriorsmark, Hon. George Leas, of Shirleysburg, and David F. Tussey, of Porter, were elected Conferees, without instructions.

The Committee on Resolutions made the following report:

The Republicans of Huntingdon county, by their representatives in Convention assembled, declare—

1st. That they maintain, with undiminished confidence, the principles of the Republican party as proclaimed in the National Platform of 1872, and endorsed by the people in the triumphant election of Grant and Wilson over the candidates and combined vote of the most discordant elements, cemented together, for the time being, by the abandonment of all political principles in a struggle for power.

2nd. That in view of that scandalous public demoralization of all opposing political parties, we now more than ever believe the maintenance and success of the Republican organization to be essential to secure the equal rights of all citizens, to preserve the public credit, to protect labor and all our great national industries, to defend personal and individual rights against all forms of aggression, to sustain and improve the national currency until it shall be par with gold, to uphold and guard at home and abroad our National honor and interests; and so believing, we pledge our best efforts to sustain the National and State administrations, and to secure the nomination and election of honest, faithful and able Republicans to all positions of political trust or power.

3d. That knowing the Hon. John Scott, as one of our fellow-citizens, who has spent his whole life in our midst, we speak with pride of his pure personal character, his fidelity and ability in the discharge of every trust that has been confided to him in private or in public life, his labors in Committees and his speeches on the floor of the United States Senate, and we say to the whole State that we personally know he has the confidence and support of the Republicans of Huntingdon county, and that they believe him to be one of the ablest and best men now in public life.

4th. That we endorse and approve the course of Wm. K. Burchinell, our late Representative in the Legislature, having always found him courteous, faithful and dilligent in the discharge of his duties, and we hereby express our regret that his business interests and relations have prevented him from again asking a nomination.

5th. That we endorse the basis and ratio of representation adopted at the meeting of the County Committee, on the 11th day of June last, as fair, liberal, and in strict accordance with Republican principles, and we hereby ratify the election of Representative and Senatorial delegates to the State Convention, made by the said Committee.

6th. That the County Committee shall be appointed by the Chairman of the County Committee this day elected, on consultation with the President of this Convention and the candidates this day nominated, the committee to be composed of the same number and in the same proportion as this Convention.

The report was unanimously adopted.

Several persons were named in connection with the Chairmanship of the County Committee, for the ensuing year, but the Convention, by almost unanimous ballot, which was subsequently made so by resolution, declared in favor of Luther S. Geissinger, esq., of Huntingdon.

On motion, adjourned sine die.

Commonwealth vs. James Egan, John McIntyre and Patrick Dolan. Indicted for assault with the intent to rob. Bill found at January sessions and case continued because defendants were not all taken. At this session James Eagan and John M'Intyre are still not taken and as to Patrick Dolan a nolle pros. was entered, the costs being paid by the county as the charge is a felony.

Commonwealth vs. James Dougherty. Charge Surety of the Peace. The offense being drunkenness and threatening the lives of those who might try to restrain him. The defendant on hearing was ordered to pay the costs of the prosecution and to enter into his recognizance in the sum of $100 for the term of one year.

Commonwealth vs. Jerome Fox. Indictment: Fornication and Bastardy on information of Catharine Harper, who is prosecutrix. Owing to the fact that the defendant was not taken, the case was continued, and a Bench warrant was issued, which writ may enable some of our officers to engage a little in the ancient sport of the Fox Chase.

Commonwealth vs. William Carrigan, Andrew Fleck and Wm. S. Chilcoat. Indictment: Murder. The Grand Jury found a true bill against Carrigan, but as to the other defendants they returned not a true bill. This was the only case in which there was a Jury trial during the entire week. The facts of this case, as elicited by the evidence, seem to be as follows: John Welsh, of Broad Top City, was married some time during the past winter; but he and his wife, not living peaceably together, Mrs. Welsh, on the 4th of last April, made information against her husband, charging him with assault and battery and with having threatened her life. The warrant was issued and placed in Carrigan's hands for execution, he being Constable of that borough. He took the warrant reluctantly, for he expected that there would be difficulty and even danger in making the arrest. But on Sunday afternoon, April 5, 1874, he took with him Messrs. Fleck and Chilcoat, and also his revolver, and started toward Welsh's house for the purpose of executing the warrant. Before proceeding far they saw Welsh, in company with Daniel Eby, coming up the hill toward them. They soon met, when Carrigan attempted to lay his hand on Welsh in the way that is usual with officers in making an arrest; but Welsh sprang aside and refused to be arrested. He then started across the road towards the house of his brother-in-law, who lived on the opposite side, across a ravine, over which there was a foot-plank. When this plank was reached by the party, Welsh being ahead and the officers following him, Welsh turned around toward the officers, and, as the Commonwealth witnesses testified, swore at them and rushed toward one of them in an angry manner, putting his hand under his coat as if to draw a pistol or knife. The one in danger jumped behind Carrigan, who, having his pistol in readiness, fired at Welsh twice in rapid succession, hitting him first in the breast and afterwards in the thigh. Welsh fell and was taken to his friend's house, where he lingered until April 17, when he died from the effects of the wounds. There was contradictory evidence as to what took place at the moment the shots were fired, but the above statement seemed to be the most probable. The Court charged that the officer, Carrigan, was bound to make the arrest as soon as he could, and that he might do it on Sunday on account of the urgency of the case; that he was bound not to run away when danger threatened, as a citizen only would have been, to avoid the taking of life; and that, though the arrest was for a mere misdemeanor, when the officer believed that his life was in danger might kill the assaulting party. It was then left for the jury to determine whether the above were the facts in this case. The jury, after 2½ hours deliberation, returned with a verdict of "not guilty." The case was taken up on Monday evening and was ended on Thursday evening. District Attorney, P. M. Lytle and R. B. Petriken for Commonwealth and Messrs. Speer, Woods and Bailey for Defendant.

Commonwealth vs. D. G. Nash. Indictment: Selling liquor without license. There appearing to be little or nothing in the case a nol. pros. was entered on payment of costs by Defendant.

Commonwealth vs. David Greene, was a case of Fornication and Bastardy on information made by Catharine Caup. The defendant not being taken a bench warrant was awarded.

Commonwealth vs. Elizabeth Gillam. Indictment: Assault and Battery. The prosecutor was Theodore Morgan. Case settled and nole pros. entered defendant paying the costs.

Commonwealth vs. Alex. Parks. Forcible Entry. The defendant was charged with having made a forcible entry upon a piece of land in Lincoln township, belonging to Simon Cohn. A nolle pros. was entered on payment of costs.

Commonwealth vs. William Stoombaugh. Assault and Battery. Robert Ramsey being prosecutor, nolle pros. entered defendant to pay cost.

Commonwealth vs. John Kelley. Assault and Battery on one John King. It seemed the defendant had borne a grudge against the prosecutor for the last nine years. Having kept his wrath warm by nursing, he embraced the first favorable opportunity of flogging John King. He then came to court pleaded guilty and was sentenced to pay a fine of $5 and the costs.

Commonwealth vs. W. S. Baker, S. Cross, J. B. Porter, C. Patterson and J. Albright, was an indictment for riot and assault at Alexandria. The defendants' all submitted except J. B. Porter, as to whom there was a nolle pros. entered. Sentenced to pay a fine of $10 each, the costs of prosecution and undergo an imprisonment of three months in the county jail.

Commonwealth vs. Jacob Stahley. Indictment: Fraudulently making a written instrument and altering and publishing the same. Informant Samuel G. Stine, defendant not taken and bench warrant awarded.

Commonwealth vs. Fisher Postlewaite. Selling liquor without license. Defendant pleads guilty and submits. Sentenced to pay a fine of $50 and costs.

Commonwealth vs. Fisher Postlewaite. Indictment: Selling liquor to minors. District Attorney enters nolle pros. on payment of costs by defendant with leave to move to take the same off at next term, if the defendant violates the liquor laws in the meantime. There is also another indictment against same defendant for selling to persons of known intemperate habits which was nolle proseed on the same conditions as above.

Commonwealth vs. G. W. Thompson and Fisher Postlewaite. Selling liquor without a license. Nolle pros. entered as to Postlewaite and G. W. Thomson pleads guilty and submits. Sentenced to pay a fine of $50 and costs of prosecution.

THE POTATO BUG CONVENTION.—A SMALL AFFAIR—WHAT A TRUMPED UP DELEGATE SAW AND HEARD.

LOWER END, August 12, 1874.

MR. EDITOR:—I called at your office, on the morning of the 11th inst., but failed to meet you, and in taking a stroll through the old burgh, heard that there was to be a Republican County Convention held at Yenter's Hall; being somewhat anxious to see and to hear what would probably be done, I went to the entrance and was informed that no outsiders would be permitted to go in. Well, I was in a dilemna. Just then it occurred to me that another Convention was to be held in the third story of the Leister building, where I wended my way. Going up several flights of stairs, I finally arrived at the Leister Hall. Not a seat, table or desk—nothing but the naked walls were to be seen. A gentleman accosted me to ascertain whether the Guss Convention was to be held there or not. I told him I had been so informed, and in consequence of a wreck on the P. R. R., I supposed that they had deferred meeting until after dinner. And now the question was with me, where could I get a good dinner? This, I ascertained, could be had at a German hotel. After having done ample justice to this important affair, I sauntered back to the Guss Convention Hall. Two negroes were engaged in carrying up boards for seats, while Mr. Guss and two other gentlemen were erecting the seats. A table and a few chairs were forthcoming.

Finally, about 2 p. m., a number of persons came up and took seats. After a good deal of whispering, winking and blinking, a certain man, a little blind of one eye, called the meeting to order, and a man somewhat bald, clothed in a "yaller" coat, spectacled, &c., was called to the Chair as Mr. President, whereupon a motion was made to receive the credentials of the delegates present. The townships and boroughs were called, when perhaps a dozen presented what purported to be credentials. Many of the districts were not represented at all, but the sagacious Chairman adopted a novel plan of filling up vacancies by appointment. I was fortunate. I should suppose that three fourth of the Delegates were appointed in this way. This over, a little more caucusing, and they come to the conclusion that they needed, what in common parlance is styled a permanent organization. Two persons were nominated, viz: Prof. Guss and "Dad" Lewis, both of whom declined the HONOR, (in my opinion this was all moonshine,) and I tell you there was a terrible commotion. Who could they take? Levi Evans would not do. Finally "Dad" had to escort himself to the Chair; this being out of gear, he proceeded to to twirl it until it had the right latitude. Then, I suppose, he made a great speech, but I could not hear scarcely any of it, on account of the terrible caucusing going on at the time. I suppose, however, that it was good, for when he sat down there was some applause in the front part of the hall. After the President had recovered his wind he announced that nominations for Assembly were in order.

Now, just here was Guss' "fun ahead." I really thought they would nominate all the Delegates present and others outside. Finally a gentlemanly attorney appeared and the nominations stopped in a jiffy. If my memory serves me right there were three other nominations made, viz: County Commissioner, Poor Director and County Surveyor, and a proposition was made to vote viva voce. Here there was a commotion which only ended after a terrible war of words and a "bet of grinning," and it was determined that each one must come up and show his colors. This over and the Chair announced the name of McAteer for Assembly—applause! "McAteer! McAteer!" came from all corners, when the man with the "yaller" coat appeared on the rostrum, with the blandest smile imaginable, and commenced a harrangue, (I never pitied a man so much in all my life. Just imagine yourself in his position; it was wicked,) with the declaration that it was unsolicited, a perfect surprise, and that there were better-men than he was, etc., etc. This I believed. Finally he told the Convention that he was a reliable man and would accept the position; however, he was no Scott man, and that *Mud*borrow had charged them (the true Republicans) with being libertines, debauchees, liars and perjurers, and what not? But despite Johnny Scott and *Mud*borrow they would go on to victory, reminding the brethren, however, that it would take some work and mighty faith! And now he thanked the Convention for the nomination and took his seat. Applause! Esq'r. Evans was called upon, but was not be heard from. Mr. Ammerman responded briefly, "I will accept," and walked forward with a letter (I suppose) of acceptance. Levi Evans, at this juncture, arose and called the attention of the Chairman to the fact that the Scottites had zeal and energy enough but no judgment, and let me tell you this was a telling speech upon these people!

"Dad" Lewis was appointed Chairman of the County Committee. Prof. Guss said, after the old gent had been appointed, that into his hands they placed the welfare of their interests, &c. Applause!

Guss, at one time, wanted the Convention to take some action upon the outrages, perpetrated upon him, as he was pleased to term them, but his appeal was unheeded. He was badly snubbed. Poor devil, he was as completely ignored as if he had been a thing of contamination.

Good-bye, *Mud*borrow! you may hear from me again, especially if I should meet with the man with the "yaller" coat, or Levi Evans.

OBSERVER.

ALEXANDRIA ITEMS.—On Saturday, August 1st, the Alexandria Brass Band was invited to attend a celebration at Arch Spring. They did so, and did not receive enough pay for their services to defray expenses. We hope the bands in the neighborhood will lookout for these folks; if they should be called on to play they had better secure their pay before they begin. They do not appreciate music, or are a mean, miserly set.

P. H. Piper, Alexandria's accommodating hack driver, has been laid up for a few days, but he is on his pins again and improving slowly.

The base ball fever is getting high here.—Boys, keep cool, you will run against a nine, some of these days, that will flax you out of your boots.

Prof. Thomas Porter and lady, of Lafayette College, Easton, Pennsylvania, are spending a short time with his father. They look fine.

The Methodist Fair and Festival came off on Friday and Saturday nights, August 7th and 8th.

It looks well for Alexandria when they have to send to Huntingdon for men to arrest or take some unruly persons to prison.

Senator Scott and some of his old friends and acquaintances went out on a fishing party, on last Friday a week ago, but were not out long before a rain came up and they returned to the ancient burg, Alexandria, and gave the fishing up as a bad job.

At the Methodist Festival, on Friday and Saturday of week before last, a large cake, baked by Mrs. James Wood, measuring forty inches in height, was chanced off. Miss Annie Piper being the lucky one. *

NOTICE.—The Reformed Church of Huntingdon will be re-opened for public worship on Sunday, the 23d inst. Preaching in the morning and evening by the Rev. Dr. Bomberger, President of Ursinus College. Childrens' church in the afternoon at 2½ o'clock, P. M. All are cordially invited to attend.

WHITMAN'S Sweet Cocoa Paste, at Massey's July29.

SYSTEMATIC BENEVOLENCE.—We learn from the Press that James A. Bradley, a wealthy brush maker of New York, donated a large lot at Asbury Park,—a new and delightful village of cottages on the Atlantic shore about six miles from Long Branch—for the erection of a working women's hotel. The lot was deeded to the Women's Christian Association, of Phila., which has put up a comfortable building for the entertainment of worthy working women, who will be received and given accommodation at $3 per week for board and lodging. Applications are received by a committee. Fitting inauguration exercises were held at the opening, on the 4th inst. President Grant honored the occasion by his presence. He came accompanied by Hon. John Scott, who was called upon and responded in a very happy address from which we make the following extract:

Senator Scott made a hit by relating a little incident. Said he: "I remember many years ago that I visited the beautiful Isle of Wight. We went to an old castle, around which was clustered the memory of kings and warriors of many years gone by, where I found a large party of tourists, and after we had all looked over the venerable castle ruins, I noticed that the party went quietly to a little church near by and slowly wended their way to an old graveyard. Here more tears were shed, here was more tender, gentle sympathy exprsssed than was felt in the shadows of the grand old castle ruins, or over the very block in the Tower of London, where fell the Lady Jane Grey. And why? It was the grave of whom? Of that humble child, the dairyman's daughter; and who shall say that from this home for the poor and deserving may not yet go forth some day a blessed memory of one as beautiful in her Christian character and pure and holy life."—Franklin Repository.

MILITARY.—Special orders No. 24, dated at Adjutant General's office, Harrisburg, August 1st, 1874, revokes so much of General Order No. 2 as assigned the troops of the Fifth and Twelfth Regiments infantry, and organizes the same as follows:

Fifth Regiment—Sellers Zouaves, Co. A, Centre county; Russel Zouaves, Co. B, Bedford county; Schellsburg Zouaves, Co. C, Bedford county; Latta Guards, Co. D, Blair county; Huntingdon Furnace Zouaves, Co. E, Huntingdon county; Juniata Riflemen, Co. F, Blair county.

The Twelfth Regiment of infantry is composed of the Williamsport Grays, Sholl Rifles, Covington Veterans, Taylor Guards, Sanderson Guards, Charleston Rangers, First National Guard, and Herdic Grays.

These two regiments, with three Cavalry companies, comprise the Fifth Division of the National Guard of Pennsylvania, the whole being commanded by Major General James A. Beaver, of Bellefonte.

The Cavalry companies are: Juniata Scouts, Juniata county; Sheridan Cavalry, Bedford county; Sheridan Troop, Blair county.

Orders for the election of field officers for the two regiments are pending, but no election has taken place yet.

General Orders No. 3, issued by command of the Governor, announces times and places for the Fall Inspection of the troops throughout the State. Of the Fifth Division the 12th Regiment will be inspected at Williamsport on the 8th of September, and the Fifth Regiment and independent companies (cavalry), at Tyrone on Tuesday, the 29th of September.

That the National Guard of Pennsylvania is being rapidly brought into the channel of discipline there is no question, for which much credit is due Adjutant General James W. Latta, who is proving himself wholly efficient, and very active, in the discharge of the duties of the position.—Tyrone Herald.

Philadelphia Cattle Market.

PHILADELPHIA, August 17.—There was less vitality in this department of the live stock market to-day than prevailed at the close of our last report, but there was a fair trade effected nevertheless, many buyers who failed to secure a full complement last week having put in an appearance and purchased with comparative freedom. The supply was pretty liberal, there being fully 3,500 head on sale against 1,700 head on Monday last, and prices receded fully ¼c on good grades and ½c per pound on the low and medium grades, the market closing rather tame, within the range of 6a7½c for fair and prime, 4½a5½c for common.

CENTAUR LINIMENT.

There is no pain, which the Centaur Liniments will not relieve, no swelling they will not subdue, and no lameness which they will not cure. This is strong language, but it its true. They have produced more cures of rheumatism, neuralgia, lock-jaw, palsy, sprains, swelling, caked breasts, scalds, burns, salt-rheum, ear-ache, &c., upon the human frame, and of strains, spavin, galls, &c., upon the animals in one year than have all other pretended remedies since the world began. They are counter-irritant, all healing pain relievers. Cripples throw away their crutches, the lame walk, poisonous bites are rendered harmless and the wounded are healed without a scar. The recipe is published around each bottle. They sell as no article ever before sold, and they sell because they do just what they pretend to do. Those who now suffer from rheumatism, pain or swelling deserve to suffer if they will not use Centaur Liniment, white wrapper. More than 1000 certificates of remarkable cures, including frozen limbs, chronic rheumatism, gout, running tumors, &c., have been received. We will send a circular containing certificates, the recipe &c., gratis, to any one requesting it. One bottle of the yellow wrapper Centaur Liniment is worth one hundred dollars for spavined or sweenied horses and mules or for screw-worm in sheep. Stock-owners—these liniments are worth your attention. No family should be without them. "White wrapper for family use;" Yellow wrapper for animals. Sold by all Druggists. 50 cents per bottle; large bottles, $1.00. J. B. Rose & Co., 53 Broadway, New York.

CASTORIA is more than a substitute for Castor Oil. It is the only safe article in existence which is certain to assimilate the food, regulate the bowels, cure wind-colic and produce natural sleep. It contains neither minerals morphine or alcohol, and is pleasant to take. Children need not cry and mothers may rest.

CUT THIS OUT, IT MAY SAVE YOUR LIFE.

There is no person living but what suffers more or less with Lung Diseases, Coughs, Colds or Consumption, yet some would die rather than pay 75 cents for a bottle of medicine that would cure them. If you doubt what we say in print, cut this out and take it to your Druggist S. S. SMITH & SONS, and get a sample bottle for 10 cents, or a regular size for 75 cents.

Pumpkin Seeds Kill Chickens.

Those feeding pumpkins in the fall or winter to stock, will be careful not to let the chickens eat the seed, as it will make them sick, and generally kill them. I experienced it. Last fall, when I fed pumpkins to my milch cows, the chickens would eat the seed, and I did not care. I thought if they would eat pumpkins that they would eat less corn, but I soon found out the result. I soon observed sick chickens about the place, crawling and lingering about, but did not know what was the matter, until one day a neighbor lady came to my house and got to talking about sick chickens. I told her we had some on the place that could not walk; whenever they attempted to walk, they would fall over backward. She asked me if I fed pumpkins. I told her I fed to cows, and the chicks would eat the seed, and the lady said that was the cause of it; the pumpkin seeds are too flat and tough for them to digest. If any one has chickens affected thus, let him coop them immediately, give them plenty of shelled corn and gravel. This will often cure them and clean out the pumpkin seed.—Correspondent Rural World.

Curiosities of Grafting.

There are many curious facts about vegetable life, says the Massachusetts Ploughman. We can, for example, graft the apricot on the plum, and the peach on the apricot, and thus we may produce a tree with plum roots and almond leaves. The wood, however, of the stem will consist of four different varieties, though formed from one continuous layer. Below the almond wood and the bark we shall have a perfect peach wood and bark, then perfect apricot wood and bark, and at the bottom perfect plum wood and bark. In this curious instance we see the intimate correspondence between the bark and the leaf, for if we should remove the almond branches, we might cause the several sorts of wood to develope buds and leafy twigs, each of its own kind. Each section of the compound stem has its seat of life in the cambium layer, and the cambium of each reproduces cells of its own species out of a common nutrient fluid.—Evening at Home.

STUMBLING.—When a horse stumbles never raise your voice—the creature dreads its master's chiding; never jog the reins—the mouth of the horse is far more sensitive than the human lips; never use the lash, the horse is so timid that the slighest correction overpowers its reasoning faculties. Speak to the creature; reassure the palpitating frame; seek to restore those preceptions which will form the best guard against any repetition of the faulty action.

No other Bitters in the universe can equal them. I lack space for detailing the availability of these Bitters, but will briefly state its general effects upon the human system, as follows:

It absolutely Purifies the Blood. It speedily corrects all morbid changes in the Blood. It equalizes the circulation of the Blood. It regulates the supply and quality of the Blood. It prepares the blood to furnish a proper support to all the vital properties. It enriches the constituents of the Blood upon which the vital energy of the system is dependent. It infuses the proper degree of animal heat in the system. It purges from the system the morbid humors which retard its natural functions. It imparts vilality and elasticity to every organ of the Body. It corrects all derangements, however trivial, which are the first origin of Disease. It promotes the operations of the digestive organs. It improves the appetite and removes all disagreeable feeling after eating. It perfects digestion, rendering it natural and easy. It acts as a mild and efficatious stomachic. It elevates the standard of all the vital forces. It strengthens the nervous fibres and diffuses a calm throughout the nervous system. It destroys all morbid conditions of the mind. It disperses dullness and languor. It promotes buoyancy of spirit and feeling. It banishes those clogs upon pleasure which produce gloom. It drives away those distressing symptoms which rob us of happiness. It revives the physical energies by infusing new life and power into the system. It fortifies the system against the dangers of malaria, fluctuations of the temperature, changes in the climate, &c. In short, it prepares the system for the radical change to be wrought in its condition, and restores it to perfect health and natural vigor.

BEATTY & PLOTTS'

CELEBRATED

GOLDEN-TONGUE PARLOR ORGAN

IS ACKNOWLEDGED BY EMINENT MUSICIANS AND DISTINGUISHED MEN OF HONOR TO BE THE LEADING INSTRUMENT NOW IN USE —THEY SAY—

BEATTY & PLOTTS'

PARLOR ORGANS were awarded FIRST PREMIUM and DIPLOMA over Needham & Son's and J. Estey & Co's Organs at the Carbon County Fair, held at Lehighton, Pa., September, 1872.—Lehighton Weekly News, Oct. 5, 1872.

Committee.—Prof. Charles F. Horn, Prof. Wm. Moran, and H. D. Herdy, D. D., Hon. Z. Long, President.

St. Clair, Pa., Dec. 6, 1873.

MESSRS. BEATTY & PLOTTS—Gents: I have received the Organ sent by your firm to me, and had it examined. It gives ample satisfaction.

JOHN SINEY.

Mahanoy City, Pa., Oct. 16, 1873.

THE BEATTY & PLOTTS celebrated Golden Tongue Parlor Organ is by far the best Parlor Organ in use. I have carefully examined it, and find its tone, workmanship and durability to be the best I ever saw, and I can with pleasure recommend it to any in want of a first-class parlor organ.

PROF. O. H. UNGER.

New Bethlehem, Pa., Nov. 21, 1873.

MESSRS. BEATTY & PLOTTS—Gents: Having had one of your Golden Tongue Parlor Organs, for six months past, I thought before recommending it, to give it a fair, square trial, and am happy to testify that it surpassed all that has been said or advertised about it. I have had Professors of music, and celebrated organists come and try it, and one and all say that it is one of the sweetest and best toned instruments in the market. It has taken the shine out of all others around here. I am perfectly satisfied with it. You may publish this if you see fit, as my organ can be tried by any one wishing to do so, in proof of what I say.

A. S. R. RICHARDS,
Late of the Tamaqua Courier, now at New Bethlehem, Pa.

BEATTY & PLOTTS Golden Tongue Parlor Organs are instruments that are winning for themselves a good reputation far and wide. The career of the firm is full of interest and shows what close application to one branch of business will do. Their energy, zeal and unyielding determination have enabled them to win.—Washington (N. J.) Star, March 27, 1874.

THE BEATTY & PLOTTS parlor organs are highly praised by good judges, for their sweetness of tone.—Pittston (Pa.) Comet Oct. 4, 1873.

Laury's Station, Pa., Jan. 27, 1874.

I have had BEATTY & PLOTTS' Organ since August 14th, 1872; it gives the highest satisfation, and has proved all that it was recommended by the proprietors.

JOB HENRY.

The BEATTY & PLOTTS' celebrated Golden Tongue Parlor Organs are pronounced unsurpassed by any now before the musical world, by all who have had the pleasure to examine them. Testimony from all parts of the country speaks in favor of them, going to show their superiority over all others.—Ashland, Pa., Bulletin, Dec. 5, 1873.

Laury's Station, Pa., Jan. 27, 1874.

Beatty & Plotts' Parlor Organ, of N. J., seem to give full satisfaction to all purposes all over; and I must say by the experience I have of one of these organs—which I have had in my possession for nearly two years, and is in excellent condition—I would advise all who wish to get a good and substantial parlor organ to see the above named party, before buying anywhere else.

DAVID SCHEIRER,
Music Teache

Slatington, Pa., Feb. 6, 1874.

BEATTY & PLOTTS' Parlor Organ I like better than the Standard, and gives better satisfaction, as I find by experience in my profession.

PROF. FRANK MAYER.

Tamaqua, Pa., Dec. 16, 1873.

Those desiring a beautiful ornament for their homes, as well as an instrument of unsurpassed musical excellence will find it in the Beatty & Plotts Golden Tongue Parlor Organ. It gives entire satisfaction, and, in fact, is the leading instrument of the day.

JULIA C. WHITENIGHT, Organist.

MESSRS. BEATTY & PLOTTS, of Washington, New Jersey, are happy. They live in an atmosphere of music. Music soft and sweet, music strong and warlike, the shrill notes of the warrior, or the lute-like tones of love are thrilling and ever sounding in their establishment, and their famous Golden Tongue Organs are a household necessity all over.—Tamaqua (Pa.) Courier, March 28, 1874.

PARLOR ORGAN.—We call attention to the advertisement of Beatty & Plotts, manufacturers of Parlor Organs, in another part of this paper. These organs are fast superseding all others on account of their good qualities. A number of these instruments have been sold in this county, which give general satisfaction. These instruments are highly recommended by the best musicians in the country.—Sunbury American.

St. Clair, Pa., April 7, 1874.

TO DANIEL F. BEATTY:—I have received my organ all right. It pleases me very much. I never played an organ that gives me better satisfaction, the case looks splendid. I have a friend waiting for one. Please send me another No. 60 at once for him. He advocates your organs above all others. Enclosed please find check.

Very respectfully.
JOHN MILLS.

Pianos.

PATENT

ARION

COMBINES MANNER'S FOUR

SIMPLIFYING PATENTS.

THE MOST VALUABLE PATENTS EVER USED IN PIANO-FORTES.

PATENT ARION.

REVERSED WOODEN AGRAFFE. THE COMPOUND REST PLANK. THE FULL IRON FRAME. AND THE SUSTAINING IRON BAR.

A FEW REASONS

WHY THE

ARION PIANO

IS SUPERIOR TO ALL OTHERS:

The ARION PIANO-FORTE has greater power than any other Piano-Forte manufactured.

It will Stand in Tune Longer, and in its mechanical construction it is more perfect, and, therefore, more durable, than any instrument constructed in the usual modern style.

The arrangement of the Agraffe, the manner of stringing, the peculiar form and arrangement of the Iron Frame

SUPERCEDES ALL OTHERS.

The use of a bar (which is a part of the Iron Frame on a line with the heavy steel stringing,) gives where most needed, and in this respect all other pianoes fail.

The construction of the WREST PLANK, into which the tuning Pins are inserted, is such that it is impossible for the pins to come loosened, or the Wrest Plank itself to split, as is too often the case in other Piano-Fortes.

The Extraordinary Evenness

throughout the scale, the excellent Singing Quality, the

LENGTH AND PURITY OF VIBRATION,

all go to prove what we claim, viz: that the

ARION PIANO-FORTE

Is the Best Instrument Manufactured.

ALSO

ESTEYS COTTAGE ORGANS,

WITH THE

VOX JUBILANT

AND

VOX HUMANA.

THE NE PLUS ULTRA OF

REED ORGANS,

universally acknowledged to be the BEST Organ made for Sunday Schools, Churches, Parlors and Lodges.

Having more power, with a sweeter tone, than any other Organ in the market notwithstanding the representations of agents interested in the sale of other Organs, we do fully warrant every Organ for the period of five years, (at our own expense.)

APPLETONS'

AMERICAN CYCLOPÆDIA.

NEW REVISED EDITION.

Entirely rewritten by the ablest writers on every subject. Printed from new type, and illustrated with Several Thousand Engravings and Maps.

The work originally published under the title of THE NEW AMERICAN CYCLOPÆDIA was completed in 1863, since which time the wide circulation which it has attained in all parts of the United States, and the signal developments which have taken place in every branch of science, literature and art, have induced the editors and publishers to submit it to an exact and thorough revision, and to issue a new edition entitled THE AMERICAN CYCLOPÆDIA.

Within the last ten years the progress of discovery in every department of knowledge has made a new work of reference an imperative want.

The movement of political affairs has kept pace with the discoveries of science, and their fruitful application to the industrial and useful arts and the convenience and refinement of social life. Great wars and consequent revolutions have occurred, involving national changes of peculiar moment. The civil war of our own country, which was at its height when the last volume of the old work appeared, has happily been ended, and a new course of commercial and industrial activity has been commenced.

Large accessions to our geographical knowledge have been made by the indefatigable explorers of Africa.

The great political revolutions of the last decade, with the natural result of the lapse of time, have brought into public view a multitude of new men, whose names are in every one's mouth, and of whose lives every one is curious to know the particulars. Great battles have been fought and important sieges maintained, of which the details are as yet preserved only in the newspapers or in the transient publications of the day, but which ought now to take their place in permanent and authentic history.

In preparing the present edition for the press, it has accordingly been the aim of the editors to bring down the information to the latest possible dates, and to furnish an accurate account of the most recent discoveries in science, of every fresh production in literature, and of the newest inventions in the practical arts, as well as to give a succinct and original record of the progress of political and historical events.

The work has been begun after long and careful preliminary labor, and with the most ample resources for carrying it on to a successful termination.

None of the original stereotype plates have been used, but every page has been printed on new type, forming in fact a new Cyclopædia, with the same plan and compass as its predecessor, but with a far greater pecuniary expenditure, and with such improvements in its composition as have been suggested by longer experience and enlarged knowledge.

The illustrations which are introduced for the first time in the present edition have been added not for the sake of pictorial effect, but to give lucidity and force to the explanations in the text. They embrace all branches of science and of natural history, and depict the most famous and remarkable features of scenery, architecture and art, as well as the various processes of mechanics and manufactures. Although intended for instruction rather than embellishment, no pains have been spared to insure their artistic excellence; the cost of their execution is enormous, and it is believed they will find a welcome reception as an admirable feature of the Cyclopædia, and worthy of its high character.

This work is sold to Subscribers only, payable on delivery of each volume. It will be completed in sixteen large octavo volumes, each containing about 800 pages, fully illustrated with several thousand Wood Engravings, and with numerous colored Lithographic Maps.

VINEGAR BITTERS.

PURELY VEGETABE.

FREE FROM ALCOHOL.

Dr. J. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters are a purely Vegetable preparation, made chiefly from the native herbs found on the lower ranges of the Sierra Nevada mountains of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol. The question is almost daily asked, "What is the cause of the unparalleled success of Vinegar Bitters?" Our answer is, that they remove the cause of disease, and the patient recovers his health. They are the great blood purifier and a life-giving principle, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system. Never before in the history of the world has a medicine been compounded possessing the remarkable qualities of Vinegar Bitters in healing the sick of every disease man is heir to. They are a gentle Purgative as well as Tonic, relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, in Bilious Diseases.

Dr. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters act on all these cases in a similar manner. By purifying the Blood they remove the cause, and by resolving away the effects of the inflammation (the tubercular deposits) the affected parts receive health, and a permanent cure is effected.

If men will enjoy good health, let them use Vinegar Bitters as a medicine, and avoid the use of alcoholic stimulants in every form.
